Esplanade™ 200 SC

Long-term control with Esplanade results in:

- Invasive annual grass soil seed bank depletion
- Restored native plant communities
- Decreased fine-fuels associated with wildfires
- Increased wildlife habitat quality
- Increased pollinator habitat and diversity
- Increased perennial biomass and forage production

Product Overview

A restoration herbicide that features a unique mode of action providing effective, long-lasting control of grass and broadleaf species such as cheatgrass, Japanese brome, medusahead, and ventenata. Managing the soil seed bank of these invasive annual plants is now a reality, resulting in ecosystem restoration of native rangelands. Prioritize invasive annual grass control on sites that still have viable populations of desirable perennials. For effective control Esplanade should be applied and activated by rainfall prior to target weed germination.

One of a minute number of geology and paleontology museums in Wyoming, the Tate houses a collection of over 3000 fossil and mineral specimens. Museum staff are always on hand to answer questions, help identify items visitors bring in, and make your visit to the museum an enjoyable experience. The Tate is certainly a great addition to anyone's list of 'must see sites' when traveling through Wyoming.

The NIC showcases and celebrates significant contemporary art through innovative art exhibitions, art education and art appreciation opportunities, helping everyone understand the role of art in our daily lives. Through these different experiences, we invite and encourage individuals to be creative and enjoy the art created by others. By providing a place for citizens to gather together to explore, learn, create, and express themselves, we sustain an environment that encourages children, families, and community members to discover art, be creative, and interact with each other through their shared arts experience. Our success in fulfilling this vision makes us a cultural anchor for our community.

- National Historical Trails Interpretive Center

Website: <https://nhtcf.org/>

The National Historical Trails Interpretive Center is a must-see destination while visiting Casper. Not only does it have historical information relevant to Wyoming but has a fantastic view of Casper. During your visit, you will be able to explore exhibits related to names that are truly legendary in Western history, and on the Oregon, California, Mormon and Pony Express Trails. Through these hands-on exhibits, we capture the real-life drama that over 400,000 pioneers experienced as they followed these trails between 1841 and 1868.
